

Tom Cox

Product Manager

Energy Waster Reduction

Tom Cox is a Product Manager with over 10 years of experience in Energy Waster Reduction (EWR) within the utility industry. Tom specializes in Product Innovation, leading pilots that influence how customers will save energy in the future.

Tom has also been driving the company's Workforce Development initiatives, including an innovative pilot program that provides training to unemployed, underemployed, and employed workers looking for professional development and entry into clean energy careers.

He is a graduate of Albion College and lives in the Lansing area with his wife and two daughters.